KING ALBERT RETURNS TO BRUSSELS

KING OF BELGIUM ENTERED BRUSSELS FRIDAY MORNING. ACCOMPANIED BY QUEEN ELIZABETH.

AMERICANS ARE THERE

Yankee Troops Together With British and French Soldiers Marched With Belgians.

Brussels, Nov. 23.—King Albert entered Brussels Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock. He was accompanied by Queen Elizabeth, Princess Leopold and Charles, and Prince Marie Jose.

The royal party entered at the Port de la Nation, receiving a tremendous ovation along the route.

Entering the parliament house, King Albert and his family listened to an address of welcome.

Flowers were thrown in the path of King Albert as the procession made its way along boulevards lined for miles with dense throngs.

This dispatch is being written while the noise of cheering rolls continuously like thunder across the city.

The city is wearing its gala dress and the influence of thousands during recent days has made it impossible for all to obtain lodgings.

Many are sleeping in public halls and shelters.

The return of King Albert to his capital recalls the King's prophecy in an interview with the Associated Press a few months after the Belgians had fled from their first rule of the Germans.

In the dispatch reporting this interview, given on December 20, 1914, the King's headquarters in west Flanders, the following passage occurred:

"Your majesty, it has been predicted that you will re-enter your capital in three months," the correspondent said.

The king shook his head sadly, saying:

"Not so soon, but some day I shall ride into Brussels at the head of the Belgian army."

Americans There

London.—American troops together with British and French soldiers, marching yesterday when King Albert made his entry into his capital, says the Daily Mail correspondent who witnessed the ceremony.

"I have seen many great ceremonies at many places," the correspondent writes, "but I have never seen so vast and varied a crowd so carried away by a tumult of fervor."

Artillery barrages in terms of delight and you have measure of the concentrated ecstasy of a people who felt that their freedom was being restored.

The king's procession was accompanied by the birth of the millennium.

King Leads Procession

The royal family stood for the return of peace to the king, who at the head of the army which had won that peace by its sacrifice.

Two divisions of the Belgian army, occupying some of the lines of the front, were marching in the procession.

At the head of the procession were battalions of French, American and British troops with artillery.

Excellent Weather

The day was like a summer. Many airplanes turned a silver lining to the sun as they played fantastic tricks high in the blue.

Others let drop streamers on the crowd. Every window was open and the air was fresh.

The people on the balconies had provided themselves with miniature flags and waved them vigorously as they passed down continuously.

Thousands could not even approach the route of the parade. The crowd was impassioned at the Port de la Nation.

"At one place 500 young women in chorus sang the Belgian song. Near their gay company stood a pathetic group of as many wounded men."

PROTEST AGAINST PERUVIAN BUSINESS

Buenos Ayres, Nov. 23.—Serious demonstrations against Peruvian business houses have occurred in Argentina.

The demonstrators are protesting against the rumor that the Chilean consul at Caliao had been assassinated by Peruvians, according to reports reaching Buenos Ayres.

The present unrest in Peru, Bolivia and Chile is due to the desire of the Peruvians and Bolivians to bring the Tacana and Yuki tribes under President Wilson's principle of self-determination.

These border provinces constitute the Alsace-Lorraine question of South America.

Both Peru and Bolivia insist that the provinces would return to them if the inhabitants were permitted to determine their own nationality.

The Chilean government, according to a reliable source here, has approached Argentina on the subject of Argentina remaining neutral in the event of an outbreak between Chile and Peru.

It is not definitely known what action the Argentine government has taken.

CAME FROM JAPAN TO ENLIST IN ARMY. DIES

Winona, Minn., Nov. 23.—Captain J. Millard Tawney who traveled 13,200 miles to enter the United States army, died yesterday at Valparaiso, Indiana.

He was a member of the 10th Central Postal Directory.

Tawney was a son of former Congressman James A. Tawney of this city.

Captain Tawney was stationed in Japan when the war was declared.

He had been in the United States since he was returning home immediately and seeking enlistment.

When he arrived his lieutenant berth in the local guard company had been filled.

Later he was commissioned in the aviation section.

AMERICAN SOLDIERS ON CANADIAN LIST

Ottawa, Nov. 23.—The following names of Americans appear in today's overseas casualties: missing in action, C. F. Youngberg, St. Paul; wounded, B. J. Johnson, Edmunds; D. H. E. Houghton, Hottinger, N. D.

BRITISH PRISONERS MADE TARGET FOR HUN KULTUR REPORTS SAY

London, Nov. 23.—Pitiable conditions among British prisoners of war who have been liberated by the Germans since the signing of the armistice are described by Reuters correspondent at French headquarters.

Thousands of these men, mostly British, are entering France daily.

The correspondent says he has never seen humane beings in such a state of raggedness, hunger and misery.

When the camp at Forbach, thirty-eight miles west of Metz, as well as those elsewhere were broken up, the prisoners, most of whom were captured during the march offensive, were told to clear out and seek help from their Allies.

They were given no food and had no money. They were in a state of despair, the soles of their feet were raw, the soles of their boots were worn.

Some wore no shoes at all.

They left the prison camps in droves of hundreds in charge of German officers and soldiers who had deliberately made them a target.

Many died by the roadside. When the survivors entered the French lines, French soldiers who were hardened to such scenes were horrified to see men in such plight.

This suffering was intentionally imposed upon the British.

Prisoners of other nationalities are agreed that the British were treated worse than the other prisoners at all German camps.

A further report of Sir Robert Younger's committee dealing with the treatment of prisoners in the coal and salt mines in Germany, gives harrowing details of brutal treatment by the Germans.

This report says: "From testimony scarcely a month old it is evident that there is no sign of improvement whatever in the treatment of prisoners in Germany."

This disgrace is open and flagrant and the only possible inference is that the Berlin government is determined to make no doubt that work in the mines is inflicted as punishment.

Here is an extract from a letter dated May 20, 1918, from a prisoner in a coal mine:

"We have had little to eat since we left Hameln. Two of our number have gone to the hospital with broken arms and the remainder are suffering from starvation."

As a result of the first rule of the Germans, had been driven from their country. In the dispatch reporting this interview, given on December 20, 1914, the King's headquarters in west Flanders, the following passage occurred:

"Your majesty, it has been predicted that you will re-enter your capital in three months," the correspondent said.

GERMANY IS LACKING IN HARMONY

CHAOTIC POLITICAL CONDITIONS IN GERMANY EMPHASIZED IN REPORTS RECEIVED FROM AMSTERDAM.

FORM A COMMITTEE

Committee for Naval Arm of Service Formed at Joint Sitting of Soldiers' and Workmen's Council.

London, Nov. 23.—The chaotic political conditions in Germany are emphasized in reports received here from Amsterdam and Copenhagen.

Reports from these cities during the last few days have indicated a sharp divergence of opinion in regard to the make-up of the new Germany.

There is a general lack of harmony in different parts of the country, and a tendency toward separatism.

Radical ideas are declared to be growing in the west where a Rhenish republic is said to be planned.

Call for Help

The Bremen soldiers' and workers' council at a meeting declared itself in complete accord with Bolshevism and resolved to call on the Bolsheviks in Russia to help introduce communism.

Issue Appeal

Dr. Karl Liebknecht, the radical socialist, was elected as a speaker at a meeting in Berlin which issued an appeal to the workers to emulate the Russian Bolsheviks.

The meeting refused to listen to moderate socialist speakers.

Form Committee

Amsterdam.—At a joint meeting of the soldiers' and workers' council of the German navy, it has been decided to form a committee for the naval arm of the service.

It will have its headquarters at Wilhelmshaven.

The fifty-three delegates from the councils will also be members of a central committee who must be socialists.

All orders of the ministry of marine and the admiralty staff must be signed by five men, according to the Wilhelmshaven telegram received here.

Offer Resistance

Copenhagen.—Resistance in South Germany is expected to be a Bavarian protest against the new government.

Germany is rapidly growing and is likely to result in all of South Germany being established as a new government.

According to the Berlin correspondent, the Berlin correspondent.

Another Hunting

Grand Rapids, Nov. 23.—Clayton Washburn, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Washburn of Grand Rapids, was shot yesterday by a hunter.

He was shot in the chest while hunting a deer.

A guide had shot a deer and Washburn ran ahead of the party to the deer.

Violent excitement followed when Washburn was shot.

He was taken to the hospital and is now recovering.

WILLIAM G. M'ADDOO RESIGNS POSITION

Washington, Nov. 23.—Giving necessity for replenishing his personal fortune as a reason, Wm. G. McAdoo has resigned as secretary of the Treasury and director general of the mint.

His resignation has been accepted by President Wilson.

As secretary of the treasury, Mr. McAdoo will retire as soon as a successor has been chosen and has qualified. He will relinquish his position as head of the government controlled railroads January 1, unless a director has not then been selected.

Mr. McAdoo has no outline of plans for the future, but it is understood he intends to take a vacation for several months before returning to business, probably the practice of law.

Mr. McAdoo said he had no idea who his successors might be, and added that he would make no recommendations to the president.

Regardless of the appointment to the treasury post, it is considered probable that there will be any great change in

MYERS THEATRE

Lyman H. Howe Filmed—First Motion Picture From Airplane.

Lyman H. Howe, whose Myers Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday, November 27th and 28th, with a matinee Thursday, is offering "Up in the Air with the Marines," the sensational feature of his latest program. Mr. Howe is not only presenting the story because of its remarkable interest and patriotic appeal, but because it is a matter of historical record that the first movie ever taken from an airplane was taken from the city of Milwaukee, Wis. Thus, in presenting the latest and most sensational pictures ever taken from war planes, Mr. Howe is completing the prophecy of this feature.

Other features of the new Howe program show the capture alive of dangerous wild animals such as the Canada lynx, puma, and black bear; snapshots in natural colors of peace and war; a hazardous canoe trip through South American jungles to Kalamazoo Falls, several times higher than Niagara; an anti-malarial expedition to a malarial region in the famous Red Cross poster "Greatest Mother in the World"; a quaint tour through old Mexico; and an extraordinary picture which discloses some very grotesque effects.

The entertainment throughout is spiced with original cartoons and patriotic novelties that have real humor and merit.

As that coincided with the methods of reasoning adopted by the detectives in the best sellers, I agreed, and we retraced our footsteps to the house.

"You seem to know a good deal about detective methods," I said, with mock admiration.

"Tell," he responded seriously: "I ought to. I've been chased by some of the best detectives in New York." Then he added proudly, "I had Burns after me once."

"Under her window is the first place to look," said Kent, alive with interest now in the scheme. "Where did she sleep?"

I picked out the window of Mrs. Green's room, and we carefully searched the wet ground underneath by lighting matches.

"Isn't it more probable that she would come out by the door?" I suggested. "She could never climb from that second story window."

"See that rain pipe here?" he asserted. "See that rain pipe here? It goes alongside her window. A lady like her could shin up and down that like a mouse."

Somewhat the picture of my future mother-in-law (I hoped) frisking up and down a narrow water pipe was beyond my imagination.

"Look here!" exclaimed my companion, pointing to the ground in front of him. "Is that or is it not the print of a lady's shoe?"

I looked. There was certainly a footprint there, and it was small and narrow.

"It's fresh too. You can tell by the mud that it's been made since the heavy rain. Old footprints would have been washed out anyhow."

This was sure enough reasoning. Kent started to walk in the direction that the footprints led, and I followed. All at once Kent stopped and I saw several matches all in one place.

"I think I've solved the mystery," he said, bending over the mud. "But it looks bad for the doll. There's a guy following her. Look at these marks."

"Look! She dropped this."

PETEY DINK—HE'D LIKE SOME LIGHT ON THIS SUBJECT.

SIDE LIGHTS on the CIRCUS BUSINESS

By D. W. WATT
Former Manager Burr Robbins and Later Treasurer of Adams Fairgrounds Circuses.

On Saturday and Sunday last, the company that played two days engagements at the Myers Opera House were under the management of Mr. E. J. Seymour, an old friend of mine who has been in just 30 years in circus business commencing with the Gollmar Brothers when it was a small wagon show. Mr. E. J. Seymour was with the Gollmar Brothers for 18 years and for the past several years has had charge of the culinary department with the Hagenbeck & Wallace show, better known in circus business as the "cook tent."

Mr. Seymour gave me more of a detailed account of the terrible accident to the Hagenbeck & Wallace show in Indiana last summer. He, with his wife, Cook, and 18 boys and girls, were on the train which was sidetracked and out of danger when the collision came to the last section, but all the rest of the working people with the show were in the last section or in the first section where the crash came and all the boys of the other department were either killed or injured so that it was impossible for them to come on to Beloit which was the first stop after the accident. It seemed for a time that it would be impossible to get the show together and make the next stand as Mr. Seymour was the only one that was at the head of any of the sections and he said that the show was loaded and in shape to go on until the next stand. Mr. Seymour had never loaded or unloaded a circus train in his life, knowing nothing about where to take hold and yet it seemed that it was up to him, for he and Charles Gollmar, manager in charge, were the only ones left that could be depended on to get the show together and make the next stand. The boss hostler was killed outright, the boss canvasser and the master of transportation were badly injured and of the 110 canvassers, men, boys and girls, only 10 were left. More than half of the old time drivers were either killed or injured. Mr. Seymour said that everybody that was able to work, both men and women did everything to catch a sound which punctuated the roar of the storm.

Somewhere near a revolver shot had been fired. We all hastened out of doors. "Do you suppose some one is shooting at mother?" Lucile worried. I tried to reassure her, but my efforts were politely repulsed. Apparently the matter of the telegram had erected a wall of ice between us.

"It sounded as if it came from the beach," Kent pointed in the direction of the dock. "No! I am sure it was inland," argued Bopp.

At heart I was inclined to agree with my rival, but rather than appear to do so I started for the water front. Around a bank of bushes I came to full sight of the lake. There was a comparatively quiet cove where the dock was, but just beyond a headland which sheltered the cove the waves were piling over themselves in boiling torrents where a sharp toothed reef was hidden a couple of feet below the surface.

The explanation of the revolver shots was obvious. A small steamboat was jammed hard and fast on the rocks and was pounding herself with a violence which prophesied a short life for her hull. Just as I appeared a man forward of the pilothouse fired a revolver in the air. As soon as he saw me he began to wave his arms violently and pointed to three other figures crouched on the deck.

By this time the rest of our party had caught up with me. "He seems to be signaling," Bopp interpreted sagely. "Wonder what he wants."

"What would you want if you were in a boat aground in the lake with every chance of going to pieces in ten minutes?" I yelled so as to be heard above the sea. "I suppose you would be wishing for some poached plover's eggs on a strip of toast."

"They can't expect us to come out there and get them," he decided. "No boat could live in that sea. It would be suicide to attempt to reach them." "We must do something," Lucile decided, with ready sympathy. "I'm very fond of the captain. He's been bringing our supplies for ten years." "Is that the supply boat?" Bopp demanded.

"Why, yes, certainly." "We must do something at once," Bopp began to run around in busy circles in the sand. "We must attempt to reach the poor devils. Kent, where is that boat of yours?" "I drew it up on the shore here, right alongside the dock. Why, where is it?" "Gone, eh?" Bopp shook his head knowingly. "Probably the heavy sea washed it off."

"Yes, but no sea ever untied the knot I had in her painter around this post here," Kent would have seen a mystery in Utopia. His mind insisted upon being pitted against the unknown.

Long was the silent partner in the Fair Store with Mr. Lehmann, but he was as it may John Long and Mr. Lehmann were the closest of friends.

Few, if any, stores in Chicago grew faster than the Fair Store and Mr. Lehmann soon became the power both in a business way and politically and one of the strongest recommendations that any young man could have was that E. J. Lehmann "was your friend."

It was Friday in 1884 that the Forepaugh show was exhibiting in Peru, Ind., and the following Monday was to open a two weeks engagement on the lake front in Chicago. Up to that time no show under canvass was allowed to show on the lake front in Chicago. In the morning I spoke to Mr. Forepaugh and told him that I could get away from the show for a day or two and go into Chicago and see E. J. Lehmann and get a permit to open the side show on the Lake front Sunday and Mr. Forepaugh told me to take the first train to Chicago and see what I could do and the next morning which was Saturday, I went to Mr. Lehmann's office in the Fair Store and told him what I wanted and he immediately called a back and we visited the two aldermen of the ward and in less than two hours sent a telegram to Mr. Forepaugh stating that everything was O. K.

In those days it made no difference whether we were showing on the lake front or in the city. The children (Lehmann Children) were all small and it was possible to get away from the show for a day or two and go into Chicago and see E. J. Lehmann and get a permit to open the side show on the Lake front Sunday and Mr. Forepaugh told me to take the first train to Chicago and see what I could do and the next morning which was Saturday, I went to Mr. Lehmann's office in the Fair Store and told him what I wanted and he immediately called a back and we visited the two aldermen of the ward and in less than two hours sent a telegram to Mr. Forepaugh stating that everything was O. K.

It was characteristic of Mrs. Augusta Lehmann, widow of E. J. Lehmann, founder of the Fair department, that she had not before the accident had been a charitable one inspired by patriotism.

Mrs. Lehmann died at her home at 2745 Lake View Avenue from injuries suffered Thursday when she was crushed by an elevator in her home. She had pledged a subscription to the United War Work fund and had intended to ascend to another floor to get her purse to pay it when the accident happened. She was caught between the automatic elevator and a wall and was found hanging head downward. It was necessary to chop through a wall to rescue her.

Let us put our heads together and think where we left off in the last story. For I've written so many and you have read so many and it's sometimes, and I almost make a mistake and start off by saying, "Billy Bunny said down beside a rosebush," when it's now January, and I'm under the perspiration from his forehead with his blue silk polka-dot handkerchief," when he was really turning up the collar of his great winter fur overcoat. And by the way, I tell you that every winter these two little rabbits get a new fur coat, all white, not brown like the suits they wear in the road old summer time. And the reason for this is that Leving Mother Nature gives them a white coat in the winter time so that Daddy Fox and Old Man Weasel and Robber Hawk and Tooty Owl will mistake them for little snowballs when all the ground is covered with snow. Well, now that we've got started, I remember we left these two little rabbits and the Old Brown Horse at the supper table in Uncle Lucky's little house on the corner of Lettuce street and Carrot avenue, Lettuceville, U. S. A.

Now, while they were just finishing their tulopop cream puffs, they heard the hunting call of Tooty Owl.

It sounded just outside the window and Uncle Lucky gave three hops and a half across the room and snapped down the lock on the window and then he pulled down the shade and tied the string to the leg of a chair and while he was doing all this, Billy Bunny stuffed a sofa cushion up the chimney, for if Santa Claus could get down it, why not Tooty Owl? I should like to know so would our minister to the South Pole and the Lady Street Car conductors on the Broadway open in the middle when they want to go.

But the Old Brown Horse didn't move. No, sir! He wasn't worried about Tooty Owl. He was more worried about the iron shoe on his left hind foot, because one of the nails had come out and he was afraid he'd have to go barefooted for the rest of the winter, for the blacksmith had gone to France to shoe Uncle Sam's horses.

But, dear me, these two little rabbits forgot all about the little window in the attic and pretty soon, not so very long, who should fly downstairs and into the dining room, Tooty Owl himself. And, oh me, oh my! and oh you, and oh everybody! And then Tooty Owl gave a fierce hoot and flew right at Billy Bunny. Wasn't that dreadful? And if the Old Brown Horse hadn't been there, I guess we'd have to say good-bye to the little rabbit. But when that kind horse saw what was going to happen, he threw out his left hind leg and off came the loose iron shoe and went right over the head of that wicked owl and hung around his neck with a clatter, and the next story you shall hear what happens after that.

A captain was in command of a colored company in one of the southern training camps when one day an enlisted man asked permission to spend Sunday in a nearby town. The captain said he might if he could show that he had enough money for his expenses and a little over, whereupon he pulled out a roll of bills and counted out $200 before the commanding officer. That astonished individual asked, "Where did you get all that money?" The man replied, "My wife thought I might need a little spending money, so she sent me a thousand dollars. Upon further questioning he said he had been discovered on his land in Oklahoma, hence his riches."

In the small hours of the morning a fire roused the barracks to a feverish scrambling into clothes and a wild grabbing of fire buckets. But in company D one rookie slept sweetly on under his blankets.

His bunkie, anxious to save him from a rude awakening by his corporal shook him sternly and yelled, "Get up, Harry, quick! The fire is over and we are all going home."

Harry, awake at last, seeing every one rushing downstairs, received the joyful news with a whoop, leaping out of his bunk, he threw on his clothes and, grabbing his suitcase, he dashed into the company street, where his comrades were already waiting with attention behind the water buckets.

It took five minutes to get the company back to attention, but

Harry hasn't yet entirely snapped out of the idea that the war ended the night he answered fire call with a suitcase.

HAVE COLOR IN CHEEKS
Be Better Looking—Take Olive Tablets
If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should take Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 17 years of study with his patients.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. To have a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days—you must get at the cause. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after effects.

They start the bile and overcome constipation. That's why millions of boxes are sold annually at 10c and 25c per box. All druggists. Take one or two nightly and note the pleasing results.

Scientists Prove Father John's Medicine is Five Times More Nourishing Than Many Common Foods We Eat

When you are weak and run down you need a food tonic which will supply the nourishment which you do not obtain from your food. Careful tests by expert chemists have shown that exactly the elements needed for this purpose are contained in Father John's Medicine in a form which is easily taken up by the system. The great food value of Father John's Medicine as established by scientific tests make it the ideal body-building tonic for all the family.

When a scientist states the food value of any product, he does so in terms of "calories" which he defines as the amount of heat used to raise the temperature of one gram of water one degree. A teaspoonful of Father John's Medicine contains 25,715.76 calories. The same quantity of steak contains only 10,714 calories. By these tests also it was proven that Father John's Medicine was five times more nourishing than an equal quantity of cod fish, seven and one-half times more nourishing than an equal quantity of oysters and almost six times more nourishing than pure milk.

The food energy which Father John's Medicine contains is exactly the kind of energy which is most easily taken up by the system and by the processes of nature turned into pure tissue or flesh. Because it does not contain any alcohol or dangerous drugs in any form, Father John's Medicine is the safe medicine for all the family.

AS YOUNG AS YOUR KIDNEYS

The secret of youth is ELIMINATION OF POISONS from your body. This does not mean to be a hundred and enjoy the good life with as much "pep" as you did when in the springtime of youth. Keep your body in good condition that's the secret. Watch the kidneys. The kidneys and digestive organs are the main causes. The kidneys filter and purify the blood. All the blood passes through your kidneys once every three minutes. They strain or filter out the impurities and poisons. If they don't, then clean and in proper working condition and you have nothing to fear. Let the poisonous wastes and deadly acid accumulations from your system. Take GOLD MEDAL Hamlin Oil Capsules at intervals and you will always be in perfect working order. You will feel strong and vigorous. Nerves and muscles will be elastic and your face will radiate youth and health. GOLD MEDAL Hamlin Oil Capsules are imported direct from the laboratories at Hamlin, Scotland.

They are not a patent medicine, but a guaranteed remedy which has been used by the sturdy Dutch for over 200 years and which has helped them to develop into one of the strongest and healthiest race in the world. Get them from your druggist. Do not take a substitute. In sealed packages—three sizes.

HIGH SCHOOL TEAM IS PLAYING STOUGHTON

The Janesville high school football team left Janesville early this morning for Stoughton where they are playing this afternoon. The opening line up of the team remained unchanged with the exception that Powers replaced Allen at full back. The two teams are evenly matched and the score at the end of the game should be a close one. The Janesville team after a week of strenuous practice is in excellent condition. Saturday's game will be in Beloit with Beloit high school and nearly half the school is planning on attending. The prospects are that Janesville will hand a decisive trimming to Beloit next Saturday.

WISCONSIN PLAYING
OHIO STATE TODAY

Columbus, O., Nov. 23.—Wisconsin and Ohio State football teams, both ready to defend this year by Illinois, met here today on a hard dry field in the annual gridiron battle. Both teams were reported in first class shape and a lively scrimmage was looked for. The probable line up:

Wisconsin	Position	Ohio
Leaper	L. E.	MacDonald
Minn	L. T.	Huffman
Margolis	L. G.	Fidler
Bruna	L. F.	Friedman
Josephson	R. G.	Shedden

Gridiron News

CHICAGO VS. ILLINOIS

Chicago, Nov. 23.—Interest in football centers in the game at Stagg Field today between University of Illinois eleven and University of Chicago team. Although workmen have put the gridiron in good condition as possible following the snow of yesterday and the freeze of last night, it was slippery in spots and considered poor footing for the players. Among the experts Illinois was considered to have the better chance of winning, having shown more consistent form throughout the season than Stagg's team. Should the down state eleven win they will claim the western conference championship.

Keep Warm This Winter Install an Exhaust Heater

I carry 10 styles in stocks to select from. Prices from $3.50 up.

KEEP YOUR GASOLINE UP TO SUMMER MILEAGE.
Don't Let Jack Frost Nip Your Engine.

Motor temperature is the secret of satisfactory winter driving. A cold motor means gasoline extravagance. A wastefully "rich" mixture is required for a cold engine and of course the waste continues as the engine warms up.

The Gordon Jack Frost Robe HOLDS THE HEAT UNDER THE HOOD and keeps the cold air out. It SAVES gasoline. It keeps the oil warm enough to start with the engine and prevent scored cylinders. By retaining the heat it stops rapid expansion and contraction of finely adjusted mechanism and costly bearings. It keeps the water warm for several hours. Non-freezing mixtures help to prevent freezing but they do not stop rapid changes of temperature and wastage of fuel.

Curtains are entirely closed when car is standing. Open the curtains when driving. On very cold days drive with the lower curtain up.

your batteries spinning a stubborn motor. With a Gordon Jack Frost Robe you can leave cold day motor troubles behind without a choke or a splutter.

It is never any bother and always looks well. Put it on at the first sign of frost and keep it on all winter. It saves enough in fuel to pay for itself in a short time.

Come in today and get one.

Alcohol $1.20 per gallon.

Hazelton's Series of Stories By Famous Duck Hunters of AmericaBLUEBILL SHOOTING FROM A FLOATING BLIND ON SAN FRANCISCO BAY.

By J. S. Rugland.

I see the platoons of the cool, the squadrons of the blunt, and the herds of black ducks, and all the feathered flocks. Which haunt the open bays and wheel over ocean rocks.

—Issac McLellan.

At various locations on San Francisco Bay, at low tide, large areas of "flats are bare" and to these feeding grounds the bluebill move, always making some sort of a morning and evening.

Located in the midst of these flats and out of gunshot of each other, brush blinds, both of the stationary and "floaters" type are built at intervals of shooting done over decoys. The stationary blinds referred to are built of 4x4 inch lumber, 30 feet in length, these sticks being driven into the mud and sunk about 4 to 6 feet, with five sticks on each side and plenty of room between for a duck boat. The sticks are then well braced to stand rough weather, care being taken to shoot the decoys being high above the decoys; also it is necessary to make difficult and dangerous climbs from the duck boat to the platform above. For these reasons, and others, I prefer the "floaters" type of duck blind.

Always on the level with the water, the shooter soon becomes accustomed to the frequent bobbing and jumping of his float, and it is on rare occasions that a shot is missed that can be traced to this cause. Of course, there are various types of "floaters" used; in all cases, however, some sort of solid floating foundation is laid and the blind built upon same, including a small "house" for shelter in rainy weather. The duck boat is pulled up on the float and hidden from sight.

Shooting on a broad expanse of bay water requires quite a few decoys to pull the ducks; from thirty to fifty being used. The decoys are invariably set in a V-shaped line, about 20 yards from the blind, and in a straight row. You will see from this arrangement that the decoys will appear as a large flock to ducks swinging in on either side and to an incoming bird as a flock of ducks feeding. Dried palm leaves are used to disguise the blind, appearing as a small island to birds approaching.

It is with a feeling of pleasure that I recall numerous duck hunts this season from my floating blind. A dark day with plenty of rain and a stiff southeast wind sweeping the bay is certain to make the bluebill leave the open water and seek the shelter of the bay shores, and the hunters who are lucky enough to be out on such a day are sure of wonderful sport.

I recall, recently, such a day, when thousands of bluebills and canvasback ducks were moving. With my partner, I set out fifty bluebill and canvasback decoys before daylight in the manner previously described. We were in the blind and ready at dawn but must observe the federal law relating to shooting of migratory birds, so we contented ourselves until sunrise watching large flocks of bluebill making for open water. Over our heads, and hundreds of them, within gun shot, flew flock after flock of ducks, disturbed in their early morning feeding by hunters leaving for their blinds. Occasionally reminded of our purpose of being out so early in the morning by a bluebill or two alighting among the decoys, somehow or other the time passed and with a last look at our watches we agree it is time to shoot.

And we have not long to wait. The wind steadily increased in velocity, and the ducks not wishing to ride the rough water in discomfort, commenced to return, seeking sheltered spots to await the ebb of the tide.

A flock of bluebills circled about and came up into the wind and with wings outstretched attempted to alight in the decoys. Of course, we were ready and three of the beauties were left behind. It is no small matter to retrieve dead ducks on such days, as the wind and waves carry them along in speedy fashion and when picked up and placed in a boat the combined efforts of two hunters are necessary to row the duck boat when returning to the blind against the weather. Numerous trips after dead ducks, however, add to the excitement of the sport.

High in the air, fighting their way against the wind, a flock of bluebill, twenty or more, were flying southward. I whispered to my partner to remain still and with the duck-call gave two long flutter-like calls of the bluebill. But to no avail, it seemed. Another call seemed to reach them, for the leader swerved downward with amazing speed, followed by the other ducks, with dips and circles too beautiful to describe, and which only a true duck hunter can appreciate. But at last they came within a few feet of the water and circled impatiently over the blind. Now with a final circle that showed their beautiful white upturned breasts the birds turned toward the south, probably attracted by another hunter's decoys. Flying in a straight line they passed directly over his decoys and when the hunter raised up to shoot, the bluebill made frantic efforts to escape. I discerned three splashes in the water, indicating three dead ducks, while the remaining birds climbed high in the air and made for San Pablo Bay.

With a parting glance at the fast disappearing bluebill we resumed our positions in the blind and again turned our eyes to the open bay.

Our attention was attracted to three bluebill with wings set, which came in high from the back. No call was needed to encourage them, as their actions indicated their desire to decoy. Anxiously we awaited their coming and slowly reached for our guns for not a second could be lost, if when at the outside of the decoys they decided not to decoy and wheel off at amazing speed, greatly aided by the wind. Straight in they came, looking for comfortable places to alight, and when well within the decoys we arose in unison, each killing a bird with the first barrel and the third was crumpled in midair from a well-directed shot from my partner.

And so the day passed, and when sunset came, regretfully we picked up the decoys and rowed for shore, meanwhile listening to the whistling of wings of bluebill passing over us and reviewing to ourselves the occurrences of the day.

Sweet Thought.
